The design of the wireframe is simple and clean; however, it is a little bit lacking in terms of design. The buttons are quite misplaced and the pictures are not well adjusted for each page section. For the desktop wireframe, the pages are placed side by side rather than stacked on top of each other. For a tech company, I think it's more convenient if the viewers are able to scroll easily throughout the website and be able to view the contents part by part so as to not overwhelm them with too much information. The text and picture combination are great, and it would have been better if they were vertically aligned. The mobile wireframe is a bit better in comparison to its desktop version. The pages are arranged vertically which befits a phone. Unlike the first wireframe, the pictures are not out of place. In conclusion, the wireframes are simplistic and clean, but the navigation and design could do a little better.
